

OUTGOING TELEGRAM Department of State

INDICATE: ☐ COUNCIL
☐ CLUES TO

CONFIDENTIAL
Classification

2533

265

OCT 23 11 29 PM '62

12-48

Order TO

SS
E
SP
L
H
SAL
ARA
EUR
DAC
P TOP
INR RIR

ACTION: URGENT NEW YORK 1075

INFO: Amembassy OTTAWA 507

Canadian Ambassador called on Cleveland this afternoon and gave him statement by Diefenbaker in House of Commons today.

Diefenbaker concerned that his remarks in House last night directly after President's speech, proposing that eight neutrals of ENDC make onsite inspection in Cuba to ascertain the facts; might be taken to cast doubt on the facts of the situation as outlined by President. Ritchie said Diefenbaker had been criticized for his earlier remarks and wished to clear up any misunderstanding that might exist in US Government.

Ambassador went on to clarify thought behind Diefenbaker proposal which was directed at UNGA debate following probable Soviet veto US RES when unpalatable proposals would be advanced.

He produced QTE first draft of draft resolution UNQTE which being given preliminary consideration in Ottawa destined meet this hypothetical situation. Inter alia draft proposes establish investigation and observation group composed of eight ENDC neutrals to investigate charges that nuclear missiles and other offensive weapons have been introduced in Cuba and to report

Drafted by: IO:W Wallner:mfk 10/23/62

Telegraphic transmission and classification approved by: Marian Cleveland

Comments:

EUR - Mr. Friedman (by phone)
EUR - Mr. Carlson (by phone)

CONFIDENTIAL
Classification

REPRODUCTION FROM THIS COPY IS PROHIBITED UNLESS "UNCLASSIFIED".

CONFIDENTIAL

Classification

report to SC or GA by December first.

Cleveland pointed out that we were still far from hypothetical situation which Canadian proposal designed meet, and might never get there. First Soviet public response to President's speech indicated that dispute might center not on fact of introduction of missiles into Cuba but rather on whether their purpose was offensive or defensive. Development of situation in UN would depend on course of events in outside world: in first instance in Caribbean following Presidential signature quarantine proclamation and interception of first Soviet missile. Any Canadian initiative should be geared to imminent dangers. In some situations an international dispute could be cooled off by dragging out the fact-finding process. But in this situation the President had acted on facts he had already found. What was required now was a relatively quick action to verify, not the pre-existing facts, but performance of Soviets in withdrawing offensive threat that had brought on crisis. US objection would not necessarily be to group of neutrals as verifiers but to assignment Canadians proposed for them and leisurely schedule they projected.

second

CONFIDENTIAL

Classification

CONFIDENTIAL

600 Cleveland took occasion to reinforce our concern about reported Canadian position on nuclear test moratorium, as expressed in Presidential letter to Diefenbaker. Ritchie seemed uninformed on Ottawa's reaction to this approach.

CONFIDENTIAL

TRANSCRIBED COPY FOLLOWS

ACTION      USUN NEW YORK

INFO:      Amembassy OTTOWA

Canadian Ambassador called on Cleveland this afternoon and gave him statement by Diefenbaker in House of Commons today. Diefenbaker concerned that his remarks in House last night directly after President's speech, proposing that eight neutrals of ENDC make onsite inspection in Cuba to ascertain the facts of the situation as outlined by President. Ritchie said Diefenbaker had been criticized for his earlier remarks and wished to clear up any misunderstanding that might exist in US Government.

Ambassador went on to clarify thought behind Diefenbaker proposal which was directed at UNGA debate following probable Soviet veto US RES when unpalatable proposals would be advanced. He produced QTE first draft of draft resolution UNQTE which being given preliminary consideration in Ottawa destined meet this hypothetical situation. Inter alia draft proposes establish investigation and observation group composed of eight ENDC neutrals to investigate charges that nuclear missiles and other offensive weapons have been introduced in Cuba and to report to SC or GA by December first.

Cleveland pointed out that we were still far from hypothetical situation which Canadian proposal designed meet, and might never get there. First Soviet public response to President's speech indicated that dispute might center not on fact of introduction missiles into Cuba but rather on whether their purpose was offensive or defensive. Development of situation in UN would depend on course of events in outside world: in first instance in Caribbean following Presidential signature quarantine proclamation and interception first Soviet vessel. Any Canadian initiative should be geared to imminent dangers. In some situations an international dispute could be cooled off by dragging out the fact-finding process. But in this situation the President had acted on facts he had already found. What was required now was a relatively quick action to verify, not the pre-existing facts, but performance of Soviets in withdrawing offensive threat that had brought on crisis. US objection would not necessarily be to group of neutrals as verifiers but to assignment Canadians proposed for them and leisurely schedule the projected.

[2 lines excised]

Cleveland took occasion to reinforce our concern about reported Canadian position on nuclear test moratorium, as expressed in Presidential letter to Diefenbaker. Ritchie seems uninformed on Ottawa's reaction to this approach.